The Commanding General of the Central Group of Forces, Sergei Biryuzov, departed for Hungary on 15 October 1953 and is believed to have returned on 22 October. One purpose of the visit was to choose a large maneuver area to be used by all components of the Central Group of Forces. If a suitable site is found, components of the Central Group of Forces garrisoned in Austria will proceed to Hungary for summer training. In the event that no suitable area can be located in Hungary, the Allentsteig maneuver grounds in Austria will possibly be improved to accommodate more troops in 1954.
